So I'm a large lad, i'm big, I'm chunky as the youth may say, some even say I'm thick, and as such I am a connoisseur of food, and I haven't tried these foods or drinks in a while, in fact as we speak I am drinking an Oasis Summer Fruits, of which is our first review

And I must say the drink is exquisite, the colour is a very deep scarlet, and they aftertaste it leaves reminds me of a hot summers day, as if I am in my back garden and dunking my feet in some ice, as if it were a summer where flies would drop dead in the heat, ice would melt in the suns rays, the main flavor is very sugary and artificially fruity although it says "No Artificial Flavors.", it tasted nice.. but I wish it was more organic

Which leads me to an equally unhealthy food, Creme Brulee

Creme Brulee is a lovely desert, a creamy base with a crunchy burnt sugar top, the top of creme brulee is beautifully delicate and have a sort of caramel flavor, and the inner cream tastes a lot like custard, the one I brought from Aldi had a gelatin like consistency and it was utterly delectable and yet if you were to have more then two a week then you're to be more spherical then Trump's bald spot.

Pot Noodle Bombay Bad Boy

Now THIS is spice! That feel of pure heat and pain! the flavor is overpowering and potent with heat although it's instant food it is the BEST form of instant food I have ever had! it's spice is utterly beautiful! It's made up up of dry pasta, a powder with herbs and spices, and a sachet in the pot noodle which gives it it's beautiful spice, of course spice isn't for everyone, but even if you can handle SOME spice you need to try this!